

Never Too Late

They say it's never too late to start doing the things that you should've been doing all along

And you can start now with making right the things you always making wrong

But I don't believe them They've got to be lying

The damage is done and now There's no use in trying

It was never too late until now

They say today is the first day of the rest of your life, you just take it one step at a time

But every step I take I'm turning back to you like a return to the scene of a crime

So I just can't believe them I know that they're lying

You're not there there anymore and there's no denying

It was never too late until now

Love conquers all and time heals your wounds

That's the kind of stuff they like to say

They want me to believe that things are going to get better

But I wish they'd all just go away

How can I believe them, they've got be lying

And I can see clearly through these tears that aren't drying

It was never too late until now

They say it's never too late to start changing your ways, you can always be a better man

And it's never too late to clean up your act, you just have to have faith that you can

I wish I could believe them, I wish they weren't lying

I wish I could see you, and hear you soft sighing

That it's never too late anyhow

I wish I could believe them, maybe they're not lying

Maybe you'll call me up and tell me keep trying

'Cause it's never too late anyhow

No it's never too late even now
